Speakers

In order of appearance

Caroline Taylor

University Librarian, University of Leicester and Chair of SCONUL

Caroline has been University Librarian since 2013 when she moved from Nottingham Trent University. Her portfolio at Leicester includes curriculum development, (including student learning), archives, records management and information assurance services.

A significant part of Caroline's professional career has been in public libraries and local government where she worked in Essex, Camden, Westminster, Richmond upon Thames and Oxfordshire, where she was County Librarian until 2010. With academic library colleagues in the Midlands, Caroline was instrumental in establishing the Mercian Collaboration (a sub group of SCONUL) and was its first chair, before stepping down in 2017 after three years in the role. She is Chair of SCONUL's Workforce Development Task and Finish Group and a trustee of the National Manuscripts Conservation Trust. Caroline's professional interests include library and learning space design, archives and special collections, open scholarship and leadership and management development.

Paul Feldman

Chief Executive, Jisc

Jisc is the UK higher, further education and skills sectors' not-for-profit organisation for digital services and solutions. Paul took up his role in mid-October 2015. Before joining Jisc, he was an executive partner at Gartner UK, a technology research and advisory firm. Paul spent over 20 years in financial services at Nationwide Building Society, Barclays Bank and First Data EMEA, both in IT and business roles. He has also worked in knowledge-based IT organisations including Thomson Reuters Legal UK and the Intellectual Property Office.

Paul has a track record in introducing innovative solutions, was in the vanguard of the first moves to use the internet for commercial purposes and led the work that resulted in same-day payments between bank accounts.

Professor Caroline Bassett

Professor of Digital Media, University of Sussex and Director, Sussex Humanities Lab

The Sussex Humanities Lab is a multi-disciplinary centre which investigates digital humanities as a method, a practice, and a critical endeavour. Caroline's research explores digital technology and cultural transformation and she has published widely on critical theories of the computational, technology and the everyday, gender and technology, automation and expertise, science fiction and the technological imaginary.

Recent publications include work on artificial intelligence (AI) and the new behaviourism. She is currently writing a monograph exploring anti-computing, and collaborating on a shared project investigating gender and the politics of automation.

Simon Walker

Head of Education Development, University of Greenwich

At the University of Greenwich, Simon is responsible for developing university policy and strategy on learning and teaching excellence, and supporting professional development for academic staff. He is a National Teaching Fellow and Principal Fellow of the Higher Education Academy. He established and edits several educational journals and is co-author of the Larnaca Declaration on Learning Design, published in 2016 as a book Learning Design: Conceptualizing a Framework for Teaching and Learning Online.

He is a co-founder of the International Learning Design Cross-Institutional Network, a founding member of the innovative CAMEL project management, and founder of the Academic Practice and Technology (APT) international conference. In 2012, he set up and co-led the Students as Change Agents UK Network which continues to support student engagement across the sector.

Catherine Nicole Coleman

Digital Research Architect, Stanford University Libraries
and Research Director, Humanities + Design

Nicole works at the intersection of the digital library and digital scholarship as a lead architect in the design and development of practical research services. She is currently leading an initiative within the Library to identify and enact applications of artificial intelligence – machine perception, machine learning, machine reasoning, and language recognition – to make the collections of maps, photographs, manuscripts, data sets and other assets more easily discoverable, accessible, and analysable.

At Humanities + Design she has led the design and development of numerous tools for data visualisation and analysis including Palladio, Breve, and, most recently, Data Pen. The lab encourages and supports collaboration between researchers from the humanities and design to encode interpretive method in tools for data analysis. Lessons learned in that work have proven essential to designing human-centered applications of machine intelligence in support of research.

Ann Rossiter

Executive Director, SCONUL

Ann Rossiter has been the Executive Director of SCONUL since September 2010. She is a Company Secretary, and serves on a number of external advisory groups, including the Jisc Collections Content Strategy Group and the EThoS Advisory Board. She speaks and writes for SCONUL on the broad range of issues facing libraries.

Ann has spent the majority of her career working in public policy, including as a researcher at the BBC and in Parliament, in consultancy; as director of a think-tank, and as Special Adviser to The Secretary of State, Rt. Hon John Denham MP on higher education policy. She has edited and contributed to a number of books and pamphlets on public policy issues. She is a Fellow of the RSA.

Dr Sönke Bartling

Associate Researcher: Internet enabled Innovation, The Alexander von Humboldt Institute for Internet and Society (HIIG) and Founder, Blockchain for Science

Sönke's focus is on the blockchain revolution and what it could mean for science and knowledge creation. An advocate of open science and good science practices, Sönke is interested in developing online tools for knowledge creation. Sönke is a board certified radiologist with broad clinical experience and a researcher in basic medical imaging sciences.

Caren Milloy

Deputy Director, Jisc Collections

Caren leads the licensing team and the research team at Jisc Collections. In her fourteen years at Jisc she has undertaken negotiations and licensing for a wide range of content, developed content services and conducted a range of research studies on business models and user behaviours. Caren has specialised in e-books for over ten years, managing the Jisc national e-books observatory project, the e-textbook business models project, piloting new models and most recently the AHRC funded OAPEN-UK study on open access monograph publishing in the humanities and social sciences. Coordination and communication is central to her role, ensuring that together, the research team produce the evidence required to allow the licensing team to negotiate the best terms and most affordable agreements for Jisc members.

Alison Johns

Chief Executive, Advance HE

Alison was appointed Chief Executive of Advance HE in Autumn 2017. Prior to that she was the Chief Executive of the Leadership Foundation and has worked in higher education for 25 years. Before becoming Chief Executive, she was head of policy for leadership, governance and management at HEFCE (now the Office for Students), where she established both the Leadership Foundation and the Equality Challenge Unit.

She is a past president of the Association of University Administrators (AUA) and represents the UK on the Association of Commonwealth Universities Human Resources Management Network and has recently joined the British Council's planning committee for Going Global, the major international higher education conference.

Alison has extensive international experience of higher education including leading the review of teaching and learning for the Australian government. This led to the establishment of the Office for Learning and Teaching to enhance teaching quality across the Australian higher education sector. Alison regularly takes part in conferences and events, both nationally and internationally, speaking on all aspects of university leadership, governance and management.

Dr Rufus Pollock

President & Founder, Open Knowledge International and Principal, Datopian

Dr Rufus Pollock is an entrepreneur, researcher and technologist working to make a digital information economy that works for everyone. Founder and President of Open Knowledge, a leading international non-profit organisation that empowers people and organisations with access to information and the tools and skills to use it to make a difference to what they care about.

He is an Ashoka Fellow, a Fellow of the RSA, a recipient of a three-year $1m Shuttleworth Foundation Fellowship as well as the Mead Fellowship in Economics at Emmanuel College, University of Cambridge. He has advised national governments, IGOs, companies and NGOs on how to succeed in the digital world. He holds a double first in Mathematics and a PhD in Economics from the University of Cambridge.

Dr Alexander Grossmann

Founder and President, ScienceOpen and Professor of Publishing Management, University of Applied Sciences (HTWK) Leipzig

Alexander studied Physics at the Technical University Aachen and did his Ph.D. in Physical Chemistry at the Research Center Julich (1996) before he left for a post-doc position in quantum optics at T. Hänsch's group in Munich. Until 2001 he was researcher and Associate Professor in Physics at the University of Tuebingen before he decided to join the publishing industry at Wiley-VCH and Wiley-Blackwell where he was responsible for their international publishing program in Physics until 2007.

Before he got his academic appointment in Leipzig in 2013, Alexander spent five years at Springer and De Gruyter as Managing Director and Vice President Publishing, respectively. In 2013 he co-founded the research platform ScienceOpen.

Richard Watson

Futurist-in-Residence, Technology Foresight Practice, Imperial College London

In addition to his role at Imperial College, Richard is also a lecturer at London Business School and a member of the Civil Aviation Authority's Futures Panel.

Richard has worked with, amongst others, Scottish libraries, Public Libraries New South Wales, Northern Collaboration, Bibliotheekplaza (Netherlands), the Department of Education (Australia and UK) and Cambridge University.

Richard has written five books. His first, Future Files (2007), has been translated into sixteen languages. His most recent, Digital Vs. Human, explores the areas of artificial intelligence, robotics and the internet from a human perspective.

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER, AND THE ACT OF LEARNING IS EMPOWERING.

Whether your research community are writing essays for an undergraduate module, their dissertation, thesis, or next article for an academic journal, Gale Primary Sources provides a new and unique way to discover information.

GALE REFERENCE COMPLETE

Gale Reference Complete provides subscription access to the largest package of primary and secondary sources covering every research area and discipline across STEM, Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities. It empowers every type of academic user, from the undergraduate to professional researcher.

SUPPORTING DIGITAL HUMANITIES

Partnering with libraries to support digital scholarship, Gale's Digital Scholar Lab gives librarians a clear path to advertise their Gale Primary Source collections to a new user: the digital scholar. It also brings a broad message of support to scholarly research across the campus, and new awareness of the library as the centre of scholarly information.

Welcome drinks reception

For delegates arriving in Brighton the evening before the conference, there will be a drinks reception between 6.30pm and 8.00pm. This is a relatively informal event where dress will be smart-casual or business attire. Please feel free to attend for as long as it suits your travel and other arrangements.

The reception is being held in the Clarence Suite at the Hilton Brighton Metropole Hotel. There will a selection of hot and cold canapés served, with wine and soft drinks available.

We are very grateful to SirsiDynix for their kind sponsorship which has made this event possible.

Informal dinner arrangements

We will also be arranging a series of informal groups to head off to local restaurants following the reception. If you're interested in joining one of these, please make yourself known to a member of SCONUL staff at the reception or beforehand, and we will make sure that you are included.

Conference dinner

The conference dinner is being held at British Airways i360, which is a short walk from the conference hotel (of approximately two minutes).

Dinner will be accompanied by music from Realta Strings

Supporting members: setting SCONUL's strategic priorities Ann Rossiter, Executive Director, SCONUL Judith Keene, SCONUL Board member and University Librarian, University of Worcester	Come and help decide SCONUL's priorities for the next few years at this workshop on SCONUL's next strategy. This will run from 2019-2021 and will cover the kind of services members need; priorities for research and advocacy and for strategic partnerships. What will your major challenges be, and how can SCONUL help? What issues are going to be of most concern to the sector? How should SCONUL's portfolio of services be developed?	Gloucester Room Ground floor
Developing the next generation workforce Caroline Taylor, University Librarian, University of Leicester and Chair of SCONUL Workforce Development Task and Finish Group	Members have identified the development of their workforce as one of their strategic challenges and SCONUL has set up a Workforce Development Task and Finish Group to look at these issues. The group will look at how we might increase the diversity of our current workforce; develop the pipeline for new talent for the sector and new approaches and tools we have for developing our current talent pool. This workshop will ask members for their views on these questions to help shape the work of the group.	Edinburgh Room Ground floor

Introduction and overview of Blockchain for Science Dr Sönke Bartling, Associate Researcher: Internet enabled Innovation, The Alexander von Humboldt Institute for Internet and Society (HIIG) and Founder, Blockchain for Science	After an introduction to what blockchain is, the (potential) applications of “blockchain” in science will be presented and discussed. Applications range from publishing, incentivised review and reproduction to new data handling paradigms and subject privacy concepts. An overview of the development status will be given and what needs to be done to build a silo- and walled garden-free open science ecosystem of the future.	Osborne Room Ground floor
It’s time to get a grip... on the E-textbook market Caren Milloy, Deputy Director, Jisc Collections	We are not a significant market, we are barely keeping up and we are about to miss our opportunity. It’s time for libraries to get a grip on the e-textbook market. This thought provoking presentation will set out a series of challenges to libraries based on the recent market research undertaken by Jisc Collections.	Meeting Room 3 First floor

Delivering Data Digitally

Abergower is helping libraries throughout the UK in their challenge of Digital Transformation.

ARCHIVE DIGITISATION AND 3D PRINTING

- Abergower provides an extremely high quality of care and attention to the successful conversion of the most precious source material from paper to digital content. This includes newspapers, magazines, bound books, PhD Thesis and special collection material.
- This is supported with our ability to develop unique meta data capture that will allow the content of the process to be found and retrieved in ways that the most efficient and effective for our clients.
- Abergower are also a full accredited supplier of 3D printing and scanning services and systems under the APUC LAB 1009 National Framework for all libraries in the UK. This allows procurement departments to select the most advantageous combinations of products and service to capture original items and artifacts and successfully reproduce these to the highest standards from an experienced professional specialist company.

Jisc Fringe Scale, Tools, Data Quality or Joined-up Services? What comes next for the NBK?
Neil Grindley Head of Resource Discovery, Jisc	Jisc and OCLC are working with academic and specialist libraries across the UK to build a key piece of national library data infrastructure. Whilst the National Bibliographic Knowledgebase (NBK) has got traction as a concept with many people working in libraries, there is still some way to go before it is able to deliver the full range of benefits that will define it as a transformative new national service. Choices need to be made about focus and investment as the work proceeds and this session will explore the implications of those choices and will seek input from participants about requirements and priorities.	Meeting Room 3 First floor
Kortext Fringe Libraries at the Heart of the System (Part 2): Reading analytics that lead learning
Yaz El Hakim Director of Education Strategy and Communications, Kortext	In last year's Fringe session, we looked at the user experience of students being enhanced through library projects across the UK that focused on digital content provision, digitisation of physical learning resources, aggregation and distance learning infrastructure (and subsequent competition). This session will extend 'beyond the content' to look at the learning analytics and insights that genuinely can shift the learning experience from simply serving up content to students into a personalised learning experience with architected learning pathways. A collaboratively designed and interoperable, user-centred experience will be demonstrated that creates powerful learning insights for both libraries, academics and students, both saving time and effort. Drawing on evidence that shows the more students engage with the digital learning content the better they perform, Kortext have created integrations into other digital learning content in partnership with Dawsonera, CLA (DCS and Keylinks) and Taylor &amp; Francis to simplify access to quality content.	Edinburgh Room Ground floor

Speakers	What's it all about	Location
Innovative Fringe Reach, Engage, Personalise – How your data can break down the library walls!
Colin Carter Sales Director, Europe and Africa, Innovative Interfaces	Library users assume that they are finding all of the resources available to them wherever they are starting the knowledge discovery journey. However, many of those resources, even today, are locked up in silos within the library catalogue, archive applications and other repositories. Come along and hear how Innovative is working to break down these barriers to ensure that you are reaching your users wherever they may be, and having reached them, engage with them and personalise this experience.	Gloucester Room Ground floor

OCLC

OCLC is a non-profit global library cooperative providing shared technology services, original research and community programs so that libraries can better fuel learning, research and innovation. Through OCLC, member libraries cooperatively produce and maintain WorldCat, the most comprehensive global network of data about library collections and services. Libraries gain efficiencies through OCLC's WorldShare, a complete set of library management applications and services built on an open, cloud-based platform. It is through collaboration and sharing of the world's collected knowledge that libraries can help people find answers they need to solve problems. Together as OCLC, member libraries, staff and partners make breakthroughs possible.

Reassurance Security Services Ltd Reassurance Resource Management Ltd

The best of both worlds; security and library assistants providing an enhanced level of customer service to your student base throughout the academic year.

The combination of a unique staffing option, working in tandem, has created a niche market for a superior out of hour's service to university libraries.

We provide flexible, cost effective and bespoke services to the university sector, creating added value options to increase the usage of your library space during the out of hours opening.
